Fort Polk stopping active search for Bengal Tiger

Fort Polk, La. - After seven days of no confirmed tiger sightings, Fort Polk and supporting organizations are stopping their active search efforts.

Based on the intensive efforts of Fort Polk personnel, state, federal, local agencies and volunteers, it is determined the tiger is no longer on the installation.

“Fort Polk’s number one priority is to ensure the safety of our families, Soldiers, civilian work force and visitors,” said Colonel Wade Woolfrey, Fort Polk Garrison Commander. “Our goal is to get the life of our families and Soldiers back to normal. We wish to thank all of the State, Federal, local agencies and volunteers who have assisted in our effort to locate this cat.”
